

Rolling Beat Machine – where retro sound culture and modern stage magic collide! This Dutch energy bomb led by Wouter Driessen transforms stages into danceable time machines, from Amsterdam clubs to Spanish festival nights. With an explosive mix of funk, soul, ska, and rhythm & blues, they drag every audience back to the golden age of the groove – and beyond.

The secret ingredient? The Rolling Beat Machine itself: an iconic retro sound machine dripping with allure. Picture spinning golden horns, warm tube technology, and a look that channels '70s sci-fi meets rock-'n-roll vinyl. This “groove generator” isn't just decoration – it's the pulsating heart of their performances. Live, they shape-shift between original tracks and timeless classics, always tailored to the dance-hungry crowd.

No two shows are the same, yet each delivers 100% sweat, soul, and spontaneous fun. Whether it's a wedding, festival, or underground rave, these seasoned stage beasts (with decades of experience) read the room like an open book – then co-write an unpredictable climax with the audience, fueled by roaring basslines, brass kicks, and contagious improvisation.

From smoldering R&B to ska-driven dance explosions, their “plug-and-play” mentality and crowd-connecting energy guarantee one thing: “If the crowd isn't stumbling out drenched in sweat, we're not done yet.”
